CHERNOBYL: 25 Years Later

25 Years Since the Chernobyl Disaster, CCOC Plans Various Commemorations

C H A B A D ' S April 26, 2011 marks the 25th anniversary of the Chernobyl disaster. Over the course of this time, children from the devastated region have continued to suffer from thyroid cancer, heart maladies, and debilitating birth defects as a consequence of their exposure to the radioactive material. It is imperative that these children be permanently evacuated from the devastated region to survive and lead healthy, happy lives, and this has been Chabad’s Children of Chernobyl’s (CCOC) mission from its inception. CCOC remains the only organization in the world that permanently evacuates and treats these children who are sickened by the explosion of the Chernobyl nuclear power plant. To date, CCOC has saved 2, 730 children... Please help us save the many more who await rescue.

CCOC “Alumni” Share Appreciation for Lifesaving Cause

CCOC alumni (those who were saved on CCOC’s rescue missions) express their gratitude and appreciation for all that CCOC has done for them. Not only did CCOC rescue these children and resettle them in a healthy and happy environment where they received medical treatment, support and care, but CCOC also provided them with the education and skills needed to be where they are today. Two CCOC alumni share their experiences of the Chernobyl disaster which occurred 25 years ago:

Rescued by CCOC at the age of 12, this letter expresses the heartfelt appreciation for CCOC and further exemplifies the need for CCOC to continue its work of permanently removing the children from the Chernobyl region— which remains contaminated to this day.

Simon Swerdlow, saved by CCOC on the very first rescue flight, spoke to FOX about his experiences as a Chernobyl survivor and compared it to the current nuclear crisis in Japan. Simon continuously gives back to CCOC and donates chocolates from his company, Tasty Image.

New Leadership Celebrates Purim, Saves a Child

CCOC hosted its Fourth Annual Purim Benefit Bash on Thursday, March 17th at Amnesia NYC. The event was a tremendous success, and the funds were raised to rescue a child from the contaminated Chernobyl region.

This event, spearheaded by CCOC's New Leadership division, attracted over 350 young professionals from the New York-Metro area. Dressed in costume, they were able to mingle with one another while learning about CCOC and raising the funds necessary to rescue a child from the Chernobyl region.

We would like to thank our New leadership Board and the host committee

Children saved by CCOC celebrate Purim at their new home in Israel. As a result of this year's new Leadership Purim Benefit Bash and the generosity of our supporters, these children were granted the opportunity to celebrate the holiday in a new and meaningful way.

who worked tirelessly to put together such a phenomenal event, as well as our donors who contributed to the success of the evening: Cal Nathan, Moshe Malamud, Amnesia NYC,
